

ENGINEER-IN-TRAINING

GHL CONSULTANTS LTD is a Vancouver based consulting firm specializing in the practice of Fire Engineering and Building Codes. We provide clients with creative fire engineering design solutions to address fire and life safety challenges arising from compliance with the Building Code. Examples of our work, which ranges from residential to commercial and institutional, as well as healthcare and transportation, can be found on our website at www.ghl.ca.

With a reputation for excellence and creativity based upon our ability to solve problems and create value, GHL offers the opportunity to grow professionally and work on exciting building projects in BC and across Canada.

We are currently seeking a talented graduate Engineer-in-Training (EIT) to enhance our multi-disciplinary team. The applicant must have a strong background in a related field, such as:

- fire dynamics
- fluid mechanics
- building materials
- pedestrian flow theory
- finite element analysis
- structural design

The applicant must have a demonstrated ability to define, analyze, and solve engineering problems with attention to detail. The applicant is expected to work in a fast-paced, team-oriented environment involving analytical and research work, technical report and proposal writing, as well as field work at construction sites in BC and across Canada. The applicant should be able to communicate effectively (both verbally and in writing) with architects, engineers, government authorities, developers, and contractors, etc. The applicant should hold a Bachelor's Degree in Engineering (Mechanical, Electrical, Chemical or Fire Protection).

The successful candidate will receive extensive training in Building Code and principles of fire engineering and will be involved in developing solutions for fire and life safety in buildings.

GHL offers a competitive salary and benefits package, including opportunities for advanced training and education. Commensurate with experience, salary range of $80,000.00 - $85,000.00 per annum plus benefits and eligibility to participate in profit sharing.

Interested and qualified applicants are asked to submit resume along with a cover letter via email in confidence to:
